

Inclusion tool for integration-promoting work

This tool is a jointly developed output by the employees of the Parents Involved in School and Working Life Project (Vamu), created as part of Iina Stenvall's Master's thesis in the Community Pedagogue (Master's Degree) programme at HUMAK University of Applied Sciences: Promoting inclusion and integration through regional activities in the Parents Involved in School and Working Life Project (2024).

Instructions for Using the Inclusion Tool

The Inclusion Tool for integration-promoting work is intended for use in services aimed at immigrants. With the help of the tool, it is possible to examine the client's experiences of inclusion in different areas of life and their connection to the integration process. The tool consists of color-coded sets of statements covering six questionnaire sections. The color codes are based on the colors of the major districts of the City of Vantaa. Each domain includes 15–29 statements. In total, the tool contains 122 statements.

- Inclusion in one's own life – 25 statements
- Inclusion as a parent – 22 statements
- Inclusion in sex and intimate relationships – 15 statements
- Inclusion in a group – 16 statements
- Inclusion in studies and working life – 15 statements
- Inclusion in society – 29 statements

The party using the tool can choose which questionnaire section is suitable for the service or activity in question. By responding to the statements, it becomes clear in which matters the client feels included, in which matters sometimes, and in which not at all. This way, the service provider can potentially support and promote the client's experiences of inclusion. Questionnaire sections can be used at the beginning of a service period and again at the end, making it possible to observe in which areas participation in the service has increased experiences of inclusion and in which it has not.

Response options:

- Yes – the client feels a sense of inclusion
- No – the client does not feel a sense of inclusion
- Sometimes – the client sometimes feels a sense of inclusion (not applicable to all statements)
- Effects of the activity on inclusion – completed at the end of the activity period, so that we can see how participating in the activity has affected the client's experiences of inclusion.
- The client leaves an answer blank if they do not understand the statement or do not want to respond to it.

Inclusion activity cards for integration-promoting work

The activity cards are a jointly developed output by the employees of the Parents Involved in School and Working Life Project (Vamu), created as part of Iina Stenvall's Master's thesis in the Community Pedagogue (Master's Degree) programme at HUMAK University of Applied Sciences: Promoting inclusion and integration through regional activities in the Parents Involved in School and Working Life Project (2024).

Instructions for Using the Activity Cards

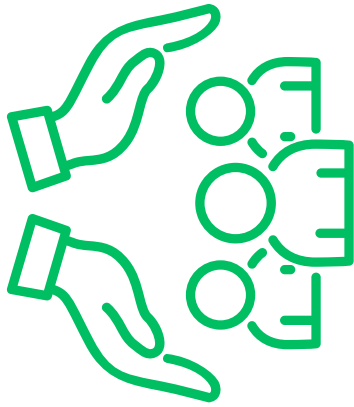

Illustrated inclusion activity cards were also created from the inclusion tool that was co-developed by the Vamu project team. The inclusion tool and the activity cards have the same color-coded sections and numbered statements.

- Inclusion in one's own life – 25 statements
- Inclusion as a parent – 22 statements
- Inclusion in sex and intimate relationships – statements
- Inclusion in a group – 16 statements
- Inclusion in studies and working life – statements
- Inclusion in society – 29 statements

The purpose of the activity cards is to spark discussion and increase awareness of themes related to inclusion through participatory methods. The activity cards enable a more versatile use of inclusion themes. They can be used at different stages of the activity period when addressing topics related to the different areas. The cards can be used, for example, to open a discussion, to express opinions, or in individual guidance. With the cards, participants can also play games such as pantomime or word-guessing/explanation. The different areas can be used for small-group work, where participants can reflect on challenges to inclusion or share experiences of inclusion related to the theme in question.

The activity cards increase dialogue about inclusion and encourage participants to express experiences of inclusion or exclusion. Without awareness of inclusion, people may not be able to recognize their own needs or rights. The activity cards support the use of the inclusion tool and ensure that inclusion is also taken into account in the organizing party's activities.

I feel safe in my life.
